

Report: Seattle-area medical treatment varies widely

American Nurses Association SmartBrief | 11/17/2008

Hospitals and clinics across the Puget Sound region were inconsistent in their care of certain medical conditions, including eye exams for diabetic patients and blood clot prevention for heart surgery patients, according to a "Community Checkup" report from the Puget Sound Health Alliance. The group hopes the report will encourage improvements in preventive care. Seattle Times, The (11/14)
